NEWS ANCHOR – Achmad Sya'roni

Hello, good morning viewers!

Welcome to UTM News Update. I'm Achmad Sya'roni, bringing you the latest report from Universitas Trunojoyo Madura.

Today's headline comes from the UTM Primary Clinic, which has just completed an important accreditation process conducted by LPA ASKIN — the Indonesian Clinic Association Accreditation Body. This marks a major step in improving healthcare services on our campus.

To give us more details, we go live to our reporter, Naila Tera, who is at the clinic. Naila, what's the latest update?

Thank you, Roni.

I'm reporting live from the UTM Primary Clinic, where the three-day accreditation survey has just come to an end.

Led by Dr. Hj. Yulia Kartika and Drg. Retnowati Handayaningroem from LPA ASKIN, the survey reviewed the clinic's medical services, administration system, patient safety, and overall service quality.

The event was fully supported by UTM leadership. Vice-Rector Ari Basuki and clinic coordinator Dr. Siti Nurfitria were present and expressed their commitment to continuous improvement.

During the visit, the surveyors observed clinic operations, interviewed staff, and reviewed important documents to ensure all standards were met.

This accreditation is expected to elevate the clinic's role as a model of affordable and high-quality healthcare for both the academic community and the public.

That's all from me. Back to you, Roni.

Thank you, Naila, for the report.

Let's hope the accreditation results bring positive outcomes for the UTM Primary Clinic and continue to improve the well-being of everyone on campus.

That's all for today's UTM News Update.
